Golden Wedding in Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel N. Brown of Boston celebrated their golden wedding Monday afternoon by giving a reception at Hotel Tulleries and about 300 friends attended from various parts of New England. Mr. Brown is a native and lifelong resident of Boston and president of the E. & T. Fairbanks & Company. During the day Mr. and Mrs. Brown received many congratulatory letters, including greetings from a number of their St. Johnsbury friends. Congratulations were sent from the First Baptist church through O. H. Henderson by a special vote of the church taken at the morning service last Sunday. Although the request was made in the invitations that there should be no gifts, many were received, including a profusion of roses. Among the company was Prof. Henry Fairbanks of this place.

The Boston Globe gives this account of the valuable gift received on this occasion: "On this anniversary Mr. Brown received an album containing the signatures of all the Fairbanks scale employees located in a dozen or more of the principal cities of Europe and America, numbering about 1000 persons. All these joined in presenting to Mr. and Mrs. Brown an exquisite golden vase. This vase was made in 1732 and originally belonged to one of the royal family of England. Worked into the design are the rose, the shamrock and the thistle, emblematic of the different parts of the United Kingdom. It stands 24 inches high and is very valuable."

The CALEDONIAN joins with a host of friends in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Brown many more anniversaries and continued health for the coming years.

Star Lecture Course.

Splendid Attractions for the Season of 1906 and '07.

The list of attractions for the season's lecture course, which is now complete, will appeal to every one as the committee has succeeded in securing a series of entertainments and lectures, that is beyond doubt one of the best ever given here. Owing to the fact that the entertainments conducted by the Y. M. C. A. for the past three or four seasons have not proved much of a financial success there has been some thought of abandoning the course, but the committee have decided not only to have a course this year, but to have the best one ever given, a course of widely varied attractions all of which should be high class and each of which should be a feature. If this grand course does not prove a success it will probably be the last of its kind. Following is the list.

Nov. 6. William Owen supported by a strong company in Romeo and Juliet.

Nov. 27. The Ion Jackson Concert Co. The company that opened the course last season.

Jan. 14. Leland T. Powers.

Jan. 29. Boston Philharmonic Sextette. Six solo players from the Boston Symphony Orchestra, assisted by Miss Jennie Treverton, soprano.

Feb. 15. A lecture by Rev. Dr. Fox of Chicago.

March 15. Laurant and his own company in An Evening of Magic, surpassing anything ever before attempted in St. Johnsbury.

There will be no auction sale of seats this year. A committee has been selected to canvass the town, selling advance tickets. All purchasers of these advance tickets will have preference. The tickets for the course will go on sale at Bingham's and Orcutt's drug stores, Monday, Oct. 29, for holders of advance tickets only, and on and after Tuesday, Oct. 30, will be for sale to all.
